DANIEL SPEAKS A TUTT'S PILS FELLED ROBBER WITH UMBREL

Declares Colleague Is One of the Most Active and Efficient Senators in Washington.

NO FRICTION BETWEEN THEM

Martin Not Man Who Tries to Ride Another's Horse, He Says.

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5.—Senator John W. Dapiel, in an interview here today, made a statement called forth by the recent criticisms of his colleague, Senator Thomas S. Martin, now a candidate io re-election. The statement of Schator Daniel is of interest in view of his cordia expressions concerning his colleague and their relations, and his estimate of Senator Martin's services to the State. Incidental ly, the senior senator remarked that he had himself found it necessary to do a lot of running back and forth to the departments, and was just now kept pretty laid himself found it necessary to do a lot of running back and forth to the departments, and was just now kept pretty busy in this way.

The recent speech of Governor Mentague at Spötsylvania Courthouse, in which he characterized Senator Martin as a department runner rather than as a constructive statesman, has done much to enliven interest in the senatorial canisation. Senator Martin's services to the State, on the other hand, were summed up a few days ago by the Fetersburg Index-Appeal in an editorial in which it enumerated much important legislation? "Have you read the Petersburg IndexAppeal editorial of April 4th, headed,
What Has Senator Martin Done?" Senator Daniel was at led.
"Yes," he replied, as he took his seat acar the table in his sitting room. "I take the Index-Appeal, and have read the editorial to which you refor."
"How do you regard its statements?
Are they correct?"
"Its statements," he answered, "are undoubtedly substantially correct. They accord with my recollection of the proceedings of the Senate, and they cerainly do not overrate Senator Martin's services. A man is entitled to his retervices. A man is entitled to his record, and Senator Martin has, withou cord, and Senator Martin has, without question, been one of the most active, silert and efficient representatives in the Senate, with reference to measures in which his State was interested, as well as to general legislation, and to the multitude of affairs which come, of necessity, before the departments.

"There are a few alterations in the history given in the Index-Appen!, which I might suggest for the sake of exact accuracy, but they would not affect the substance or strength of the statements about Senator Martin's service."

"Have you read the report of Governor Montague's speach at Spotsylvania, in which he says Senator Martin's claims have been magnified at the expense of Senator Dantel, and, if so, state if there has been any friction between Senator Martin and yourself, or any ground of complaint on your part against him?"

Estimate of Martin.

answered, "The Times-Dispatch, of Richmond, in which that article appeared, and of course read the Governor's speech, I appreciate his kind and generous reference to me. Justice to my colleague and to our long relations of friendship, however, require me to say that he has never appeared to me the man to try to ride another's horse, and that I have always found him ready and glad to accord credit and honor where they were due.

have substantial services unnoted and trivial ones exaggerated; and I have no doubt it has happened likewise to Sentor Martin and will happen to everybody clae in the public service. But there has never been friction or ill-feeling between my colleague and myself. We have always co-operated genially, caring little which one of us did this or that thing, but only that it be done. "I have found him invariably fair, candid and generous and have no complaint whatever against him.

Delays Trial of Hargises.

LEXINGTON, KY., April 5.—On account of continued absence of the State's witnesses, the case against Judge James Hargis, Elsert Hargis and Sheriff Edward Callahan, charged with complicity in Breathit county feud murders, was postponed until Friday. Absence of the witnesses caused the attorneys to engage in a tilt, it heing charged that what were called "Heathitt county methods" of inlimitation, were being induged in to keep imperant witnesses away from the trial. The court cut short the colloquy by announcing a determination to bring witnesses into court under an order of ardue.

STRUCK WITH A BLACKJACK

Girl Was Knocked Down, But Screams Brought Policeman to Scene.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 5.—Three highway-men with blackjacks and revolvers at-tacked Dominick Danzo, a wealthy produce merchant in Twenty-fourth Street, early to-day, beat him into semi-con-sciousness, and would have robbed him of not been for assistance given him by his piece. Miss Malino Wayle, whom his

Was escorting home.

As it was, Danzo saved his money and valuables and one of the robbers was captured, after Miss Wayle had been struck with a blackinck, a policeman had had part of his hand blown off by an exploding revolver, a clizen had been knocked down and injured by the robber and several other policemen had received cuts and bruises which called for treatment by an ambulance surgeon.

Danzo and Miss Wayle were going through Twenty-fourth Street, when three men selzed the merchant by the throat and bore him to the ground.

A second rained blows on his head and the third started to riffe his pockets.

Miss Wayle carried a heavy umbrella. So sudden was the atack that she was thrown from hea feet, but, arising, she dealt the man with the revolver a hard hlow on the head with her umbrella handle.

He was staggered by the blow, and before he could recover a second knock on the head sent him to his knees. A blow from the blackjack felled the girl, but in the meantlime her screams had brought several policemen to the scene.

Two of the robbers had run away before the police arrived, but the one who had been felled by the girl's umbrella was left behind and subsequently captured.

and the Seaboard Air Line shops, which will increase the population of Portsmouth by 5,000 people.

If these plans do not miscarry, and there seems to be no reason why they should, Norfolk will have a population within two years of not less than 116,000, which will place her at the top of the list of the cities of Virginia.

In Front Rank.

In Front Rank.

A well known citizen said to-day:

"Years ago, in the days of Colonel Byrd, Norfolk was The greatest trading settlement in the country, with the single exception of Boston. There is no reason why she should not take again her old rank, and we mean to place her there it push and perseverance can do it. Our people stand together, for advancement and there are no opposing forces. Our desire is to make Norfolk the greatest city in the South and we must and will succeed. In ten years our boundaries will extend to Hampton Roads and our population will number 200,000. We are not at a standstill, we are going forward.
It has been proved by actual test that annexation is a good thins for all parties concerned and especially has it been the means of advancing real estate values. We feel that we must control our outlying district for physical, political, values. We feel that we must control our outlying district for physical, political, sanitary and moral reasons, and practical experience has taught us that annexation is the proper method of control."

Norfolk people wonder at the lack of progress so far apparent on the part of Richmond, but they are quick to take advantage of it.

The growth of Norfolk has been extra-ordinary, and it would seem almost miraculous were to not known that the udvancement has been the result of well ordered plans made by energetic and public spirited citizens, who have placed the welfage of their city always before public spirited citizens, who have placed the welfare of their city always before their own private interest.

In 1880, Norfolk's population was 21,996.
In 1890 it had increased to 34,781, and in 1900 it has still further increased to 46,824.

It is now in 1905 estimated that with the newly acquired districts that have already been taken in and those districts, other than Portsmouth and Berkley, that are purposed to be annexed, Norfolk's Mrs. Pollie Moore.

TAZDWELL, VA., April 5.—Mrs. Pollie Moore, acquired districts that have already been taken in and those districts, other than Portsmouth and Berkley, that are purposed to be annexed, Norfolk's population is in the neighborhood of 76,000.

With Portsmouth, Berkley and their suburbs annexed, the population will run to 116,000, making greater Norfolk the greatest city in Virginia,
